STEADY IMPROVEMENT

Is What the President Seems to be Having—No More Trouble Looked For.

Long Branch, 9.—To-day is conceded by attending surgeons and the President's attendants to be one of the best days he has had since he was shot. During the morning, the surgeon, while examining the President, pressed his finger on the spot on the body supposed to be directly over the ball. The patient did not experience any discomfort from the slight pressure. It is not thought the ball in its present location will cause inconvenience to the President in the use of his limbs. He is now able to raise his right leg, which is near the supposed location of the ball, as easily as he does the left. Inquiry elicited the statement that there was found to be a noticeable flatness or indications of irregularity of one lung some weeks ago, but the cause of it was then and is now attributed to other causes than the blood. No great anxiety exists at present regarding the probability that the lungs may eventually become affected.

Corbin says the President passed an exceedingly favorable afternoon. He ate a very good dinner. Mrs. Garfield said to the Colonel that she felt sure the President was better to-day. The favorable symptoms are expected to continue from two to four weeks before the President can be pronounced convalescent.

Blaine, at 10 this evening, cabled Lowell, minister, as follows: The medical examinations were all favorable to-day, morning, noon and night. The President has not for many weeks done so well for so many consecutive hours. He has had very little fever, his respiration has been normal and his pulse has not exceeded 100. He slept without opiates, and gained strength without stimulants. His nights are not as restless as could be desired, but in 24 hours he gets sufficient sleep. The weather, though not excessively warm, continues sultry and oppressive. Much is hoped for the clear bracing air which may be expected here at this season.

Col. Rockwell, to-night, said the President takes nourishment freely. He had eaten woodcock, milk porridge and bouillon with relish. The Colonel received a dozen fine squirrels to-day for the President's use. Agnew arrived to-night. Upon entering the President's room he said, "Mr. President, you have improved considerably since I last saw you." The President said, "Do you think so?" Hamilton left this morning but returns on Tuesday next. The President's easy chair arrived from Washington to-night. Bliss said to-night that everything was going on splendidly. There will be no further trouble from the gland. The President mentioned this morning that he had been isolated from the cabinet officers for a long time, and expressed a desire to see them. I told him now that he was convalescent, I did not think it would injure him to see the members quietly and at intervals, and their visits be very brief, and they will be very considerate and careful. For breakfast he ate woodcock and an entire piece of toasted bread, with the exception of the crust, and some gruel. At midday he had another bird and some beef extract; this evening he will probably confine himself to liquids. There is no foundation in the rumors that the President was nauseated last night. He was merely a little overfed and uncomfortable. Dr. Bliss insists that there is nothing of a serious character about the lungs. If there had been it would have developed itself. The flatness which was found in the lungs was explained as being what is termed hypodermic congestion, caused by the passage of the ball through the border of the diaphragm. If there was trouble there, caused by septicemia, it would be pronounced in the temperature. There would be a higher febrile rise at once, and the equable condition could not exist.

"Has the President given any special evidence of cheerfulness or interest in matters generally to-day?" "Yes, he expressed himself as pleased with looking upon the ocean, and exhibits considerable interest in matters generally. The catheter penetrated ten inches when I used it last. I have selected a small catheter now which I intend using. Dr. Agnew called my attention to-day to what he thought was a filling up on the well side near the hip, and I don't know but it is so. I see very plainly the lines and expression of his face are more firm and each has more and better expression than he had."

"Is there any evidence that the wound is granulating?" "Yes, I know it is granulating, and rough handling would make it bleed now, while a week ago it would not. Mrs. Garfield feels great confidence in her husband's ultimate recovery."

Midnight.—The President's condition has continued favorable. He rested better to-night than in the early part of any night, for a week past. His pulse was somewhat higher owing to the evening febrile rise, but Dr. Bliss says his general conditions continue favorable. About 11:30 Dr. Bliss said he was going to retire, and did not expect to be disturbed before morning.

Hot Springs, 9.—The Sentinel claims that the President's stomach is relieved and toned up by water sent from here, on recommendation of Secretary Blaine, who has used it.

New York, 9.—Tribune. Long Branch.—Attorney-General MacVeach was admitted to the sick room, and other members of the cabinet were admitted to-day. At midnight the President was sleeping more quietly than at the same time for a week past.

Long Branch, 10, 9:40 p.m.—At the examination of the President at 8:30 this morning, the temperature was 99.4°, pulse 104, respiration 18. He slept well during the night, awakening only at intervals of one half hour. There is a perceptible increase of strength, with an improved condition of the digestive apparatus. The tumefaction of the parotid gland has entirely disappeared, and suppuration has greatly diminished. The wound continues to improve, and presents a good, healthy appearance. Signed, Bliss and others.

The morning was very stormy. A drenching southeasterly storm set in during the night, and bids fair to continue throughout the day. The ocean is hazy and the weather sultry. Colonel Corbin said early this morning that the President passed a fair night, was quite comfortable, and while he had slept sufficiently he did not rest as well as he might. The attending surgeon says the morning bulletin tells the whole story. It is the idea of Dr. Bliss to make the bulletins more detailed and comprehensive. Notwithstanding the slight rise of pulse and temperature noted in the morning bulletin the President is considered quite as well as yesterday. Further than this little can be said, much as there are no details to explain and the President is certainly gaining ground without the appearance of unfavorable symptoms or indications. Stormy weather has the effect of keeping almost everyone in doors, and many have left for the city.

Various rumors are afloat regarding the President's condition and wound. It appears that some persons are determined to iterate false representations. While the attending surgeons have not been seen personally for an hour or so, as far as reliable information has been received the President continues to improve and nothing unfavorable is observed. The weather is oppressively hot and sultry.

THE LUNGS.

New York, 10.—The Times' Long Branch correspondent asked Bliss if he thought the President's lungs were affected by blood poisoning? "I know they are not so affected in the slightest degree, otherwise there would be a rise in his temperature, pulsation and respiration at once, and his present equable condition of things could not exist."

How does the President manifest improvement? "He is more disposed to exert himself. He is bright and observant. At noonday he said to me, 'Doctor, that is the easiest dressing you ever gave me,' and that was because the condition of the parotid swelling does not require so much attention. When taking his temperature this evening I used for the first time a very fine Gaslette thermometer, sent me from Yale College. It is about twice as long as the one I had been using. He looked at it and said, 'Doctor, have you broken your old one?' Some of the family think he is gaining tissue, but I cannot say that I have perceived it. Dr. Agnew called my attention to what he believed to be increased fullness over the trips and I thought I observed something of the kind. I tell you where I do see improvement—in the lines of expression in his face, which are more firm and more expressive."

Elberon, 6 p.m.—At the examination of the President at 12 m. to-day, his temperature was 98.5, pulse 100, respiration 18. At 5:30 this evening his temperature was 98.7, pulse 100, respiration 18. The President has taken a greater amount of liquid with some solid food, and with more relish than for several days. His general condition is quite as favorable as yesterday.

(Signed) D. W. BLISS, D. H. AGNEW.

Elberon, 2 p.m.—It can be authoritatively stated that the President is passing nearly, if not quite, as good a day as yesterday. His pulse and temperature at the morning dressing, although higher than yesterday, are not indicative of anything serious, and do not disturb the feeling of the surgeons that the patient is doing nicely. During the night the febrile rise caused the pulse to run up to a comparatively high figure, but it soon decreased again. It is a matter for comment that the President did not commence the day under as favorable circumstances as yesterday, but after the morning dressing he began to grow stronger, and at 10 o'clock his condition compared favorably with that of yesterday, and there were no alarming indications.

Dr. Agnew considers the President quite as well as yesterday.

At 1:50 the President's pulse is about 102 and temperature a little above normal, but less than this morning.

The weather has been stormy and disagreeable. The day, so far as the President is concerned, may be summed up as having been very favorable, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. In the language of one of the immediate attendants, the President has been much better to-day, compared with yesterday, as he was yesterday compared with Thursday. He has made a little gain, and has expressed himself as feeling better in every way. The incidents of the day have been comparatively few. All the members of the cabinet paid their customary daily visit to the President's quarters this afternoon, and about 6 o'clock Secretary Windom was ushered into the sick room. The secretary, upon entering, took the hand of the President and informed him there was nothing in the treasury department requiring his attention, and after exchanging a few other remarks withdrew. The President simply acknowledged the secretary's statement without comment. Secretary Windom appears satisfied with the appearance.

BLAINE TO LOWELL.

After the dispatch last night the President had a considerable increase of fever. Indeed a rise of pulse and temperature every night has become a significant feature in his case. Through the day, and especially this afternoon, he has grown more comfortable. A cold easterly storm has prevailed since early morning, without evil effect thus far to his condition.

Secretary Windom had a brief interview with the President at noon. He found him much reduced in strength, but clear in mind. He asked the secretary about the success of the refunding of the public debt.

Chicago, 10.—Inter-Ocean's Long Branch: There is a swelling, the size of a hen's egg, in the President's back, directly over the spine in the center of the body. It has been lanced, and a discharge of pus followed. It gave the physicians considerable annoyance on account of its size and the troublesome position in which it came. No mention of this abscess has been made by the attendant physicians.

COLORADO MOSQUITOES.—No, there are no mosquitoes in Colorado. The birds that make their appearance in this locality this time of the year are not mosquitoes but a species of vampire. They build their nests in the lofty pines on the mountain heights and hatch out from tenthouses and to twenty thousand little birds apiece. Then they come down to Denver with their families for a protracted holiday. When they strike a man for a square meal, they bore a hole in him like an artesian well and pump the gore out of every recess of his body. They can be successfully hunted with shotguns. Their pelts make excellent sole leather, and their beaks can be utilized as pegging awls.—Denver Tribune.
